

INCOME PARTNERS MANAGED VOLATILITY HIGH YIELD BOND FUND - CLASS 2

Fund Manager's Report - 28 Nov 2025

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

- Income Partners Managed Volatility High Yield Bond Fund (the "Fund") invests primarily in high yield debt instruments, which are below investment grade or unrated. The Fund will invest in high yield debt instruments, and as a result may be subject to substantial credit/counterparty risk, credit rating related risks, interest rates risk, liquidity risks, and valuation risks. The investments held by the Fund may fall in value and therefore your investment in the Fund may suffer losses.
- The Fund's managed volatility strategy may not achieve the desired results under all circumstances. While the Fund's manager will endeavor to manage the Fund such that it does not exceed its pre-determined annualized volatility target, there is no guarantee that such targets can be reached in all market conditions. Managed volatility does not necessarily mean lower risk and the Fund may still suffer losses.
- The Fund is denominated in RMB, and RMB is currently not freely convertible and is subject to exchange controls and restrictions. There is no guarantee that RMB will not depreciate. If you convert Hong Kong Dollar or any other currency into RMB so as to invest in the Fund and subsequently convert the RMB redemption proceeds back into Hong Kong Dollar or any other currency, you may suffer a loss if RMB depreciates against Hong Kong Dollar or other currency. In addition, the underlying investments in the Fund may be denominated in currencies other than RMB. The NAV may be affected favorably by fluctuations in the exchange rates between these currencies and the base currency and by changes in the exchange rate controls.
- The Fund invests in the Greater China region and in the China market and there is subject to emerging market risk including political, economic, legal, regulatory and liquidity risks.
- The Fund may invest in derivative transactions such as swaps, futures and forwards for hedging purposes. There is no guarantee that the hedging techniques will be effective.
- In respect of the distribution Units of the Fund (save for Class 2C Dis (USD) Units), the Fund's manager currently intends to make monthly dividend distribution. However, the distribution amount of dividend rate is not guaranteed. In respect of the Class 2C Dis (USD) Units, the Fund's manager makes non-discretionary monthly distributions. For certain classes of Units of the Fund, the Fund's manager may at its discretion pay distributions out of the capital of the Fund. The Fund's manager may also, at its discretion, pay distributions out of gross income, while paying all or part of the fees and expenses of the capital of the Fund, resulting in an increase in distributable income for payment of distributions by the Fund. Therefore the Fund may effectively make payment of dividend out of capital. Payment of distributions out of capital represents a return or withdrawal of part of the amount they originally invested of from any capital gains attributable to the original investment. Any such distributions may result in an immediate reduction of the net asset value per unit of the Fund.
- Investment involves risk. Past performance is not a guarantee or a reliable indicator of future results and no guarantee is being made that similar returns will be achieved in the future.
- In making investment decisions, investors should not rely solely on the information in this report and should read the offering document of the Fund of further details including the risk factors. This document does not constitute an offering document.

MANAGER'S COMMENTARY¹⁵

In November, the Asia high-yield bond market entered a consolidation phase following the sharp "truce rally" at the end of October. Market dynamics shifted, with macroeconomic data taking precedence over the geopolitical headlines that had dominated sentiment in October. The month began with investors digesting the late-October rally, while sentiment improved mid-month as expectations grew for a potential Federal Reserve rate cut in December. However, these gains moderated toward the end of November due to renewed concerns over China's property sector and typical year-end liquidity constraints.

China's economic momentum showed early signs of stabilization, though challenges remain. The official manufacturing PMI inched up slightly to 49.2 in November from 49.0 in October, continuing in contractionary territory for the eighth consecutive month. Deflationary pressures eased modestly, with headline CPI rising 0.7% year-on-year in November, aligning with market expectations. However, underlying demand remained fragile. The November 11 shopping festival posted strong transaction volumes, but lower average spending per consumer highlighted still-cautious household sentiment. In response to persistent property market distress, Beijing introduced a comprehensive liquidity support package for developers late in the month, which temporarily bolstered market confidence.

MANAGER'S COMMENTARY (Cont'd)¹⁵

In the U.S., the Federal Reserve delivered a 25-basis-points rate-cut on December 10, bringing the federal funds target range to 3.50%-3.75%. The Fed also signaled plans to expand its balance sheet via Treasury bill purchases to support liquidity. The latest dot plot suggests only one rate cut in 2026. Anticipation of the December rate cut kept the 10-year U.S. Treasury yield trading within a narrow range of 4.0%-4.2% throughout November.

Asia high-yield credit performance was mixed during the month. Chinese credits, particularly in the property sector, came under renewed pressure following idiosyncratic headlines around Vanke. This triggered a broader sell-off in property-related names across the region. In contrast, Hong Kong high-yield bonds demonstrated resilience, supported by strong gains from local property issuers. Looking ahead, market activity is expected to slow as liquidity thins during the holiday season. Investor focus will likely remain on the implementation of Chinese policy measures and the ongoing stress in the domestic property market as we enter the new year.

The Fund's portfolio allocation remained largely stable, with selective adjustments aimed at enhancing the portfolio's risk-return profile. As year-end approaches, our strategy remains centered on managing volatility and positioning the portfolio to capture emerging opportunities in early 2026. We continue to monitor global monetary policy developments and regional credit conditions closely to navigate the evolving market landscape.
